BOY MUST CONQUER HIMSELF

Breaking Lad's Will Spoils His Capabilities and Turns Success Into Bad Failure.

I am often asked by letter and other wise how I get such wonderful results in the performance of high class music and almost perfect discipline. Here is one of the items from a long list. I never set out to break the will of a boy, as I sometimes hear teachers brag they do, but endeavor to strengthen his will. Breaking the will spoils a boy's capability, produces lassitude and turns what might have been a success into a miserable failure, writes J. B. Vanderwerker in Christian Advocate. A child with a broken will is sure to be sullen and stubborn, ill mannered, miserably unhappy and ethical ends in the insane asylum or some kind of prison. May heaven have mercy upon the parent or teacher who knowingly sets out to break the will of any boy or girl.

Better that persons placed over boys and girls should try to teach self-mastery. But remember that self-mastery can be taught only by a person having self-mastery. Instead of conquering a child you had better, in a self-way, test you fail—teach him to conquer himself, harness and bridle his will so that he can sit upon soft cushions and drive anywhere. For will power is life attem.

TORPEDO WILL FOLLOW SHIP

Magnetic Torpedo is Latest Invention of Young America—Attracted by Mass of Metal.

The inventive mind of young America has become proverbial. Its latest invention, and one in which belligerent Europe is greatly interested, is a magnetic torpedo which is attracted by any great mass of metal, so that when it approaches the ship which is its target it will turn and follow the unfortunate vessel in spite of all attempts to dodge it. This apparent hypnotism is caused by two wire magnetic coils four inches in diameter which are attached to two nickel arms projecting at right angles from the sides of the torpedoes. The presence of any large mass of metal affects the current passing through these coils, which in turn affects the motor controlling the rudder, so that the torpedo will continually turn toward its target, no matter how often it may dodge.
